

Friends Reunited: A Strange Twist of Fate with a Surprise Ending

The following true story demonstrates the intuitive sense involved in piecing together clues given by spirit in order to help create meaning, (and in this case, resolution) as well as the miraculous gift of love and union that can come from hearts that allow themselves to open and heal.

One evening, I was doing an Angel Reading for a woman (whom I will refer to as Rose) who explained that she "found me" synchronistically over the Internet. During the session, I chose an angel card for Rose that suggested there was a deceased loved one who was present. Closing my eyes, I tuned in to the energy around Rose. Feeling a ball of energy hovering to her left, I asked if this presence would like to share a message.

Instantly, I felt the essence of metal, and sensed a strong and fast impact of some kind. Opening my eyes, I asked Rose if she knew anyone who was killed in a crash of some kind, perhaps in a vehicle accident. "Yes, she said with a very somber expression. "My best friend was killed in a car accident about a year ago." More details came, including that there was no pain. The concluding message had strong desire and emotion attached to it. The message was that it was important for no one to cast blame; for all to be forgiven and healed. "Yes," Rose explained, there is a friend that I haven't spoken to since the accident."

Not sure what that meant, I asked Rose if she felt complete with the message. She said yes, and we finished our session.

About two weeks later, I was giving an Angel Reading to another woman (who I will refer to as Leah) who explained that she learned about my work from a flyer at a local bookstore, and that she told no one she was coming, as this was very new to her. A few minutes into the session, as we were discussing relationships, I felt a strong energy trying to get my attention, similar to a young child pulling at my pant leg, except it was my actual attention that was being tugged at. I told Leah what was happening as I tuned into the presence.

Very close to Leah's left side, I felt the presence of a sphere of energy while simultaneously seeing a vision in my mind, as if being shown on a projection screen. With my eyes closed, I saw an accident that involved at least one vehicle, and explained this to Leah. Closing my eyes, and asking for more details, I instantly knew description of the person who was killed, the one who it felt like was speaking with me. Confused, I kept one eye closed, while the other peered at Leah. A person who looked exactly like Leah was the one who was showing herself to me as the one in the accident.

Taking a deep breath, I asked my own spirit supports to guide me as to what to share with Leah. I wasn't sure what was happening. Just then, Leah said, "Yes, my twin sister, Laurie, died in a car accident." As I continued to breathe deeply asking how I could serve my client, the message continued. I explained to Leah that her sister really wanted healing and forgiveness to occur. I was getting the sense that people had stopped living since the accident, though I didn't know who.

As I asked the loved one in spirit who it was that needed the healing, I got an instant flash of a previous client, Rose. "Oh my God," I thought to myself, as goose bumps (some refer to them as truth bumps) covered my arms and the hair stood up on the back of my neck. Laurie has brought both Leah and Rose to me, I thought to myself. I need to get a confirmation that it is indeed these two that need to have a healing between them occur. Due to client confidentiality, I needed to tread lightly as all of the information did not come directly through in this current reading.

Spirit intervened, and not only were a friend and her best friend in spirit on the other side reunited, and not only were a sister and her sister who had past reunited, but a dear comrade in spirit and member of a sacred threesome reunited her two fellow comrades. The two mended their hearts and rekindled their friendship. Laurie was able to bring her sister, Leah, and their mutual best friend, Rose, back together. Friends in the physical were reunited by an angel in spirit.
